THE SUSPICIONS OF MRS. ALLONBY

By MAXWELL GRAY

Author of "The Silence of Dean Maitland," etc.

This typical story by Maxwell Gray has for its heroine the pretty, frivolous, and very feminine wife of a London journalist who is somewhat discontented with her prosaic life. In search of recreation, and somewhat piqued at the ambiguous attentions of her husband to an unknown lady, she decides upon a short trip to the Riviera, and there finds herself unwittingly the object of such pointed attentions from a young man that the management put her out of the hotel. Her distress thickens until she is finally rescued by her husband.

Frontispiece by Wilmshurst. Decorated cloth.

THE WHISPERING MAN

By HENRY KITCHELL WEBSTER

Joint author "Calumet K," "Roger Drake, Captain of Industry," etc.

This detective story has a strikingly original and clever plot. It deals with the murder of a physician. The murderer's method of concealment has probably never been surpassed for ingenuity and daring. The story has the rare virtue among detective stories of playing fair with the reader. It is one of the best novels of its kind that has appeared in years.

"Meredith Nicholson, whose books always attain the success of being numbered among the season's six best sellers, has made his new book, THE LITTLE BROWN JUG AT KILDARE the best of his fiction. The whimsical title gives a hint of the manner of the narrative. The situations are farcical, but one finds the improbability itself delightful in admiring the daring that framed it."

—The Chicago Journal.

"By all odds the best book Meredith Nicholson has given us since 'The House of a Thousand Candles,'" says The Pittsburg Dispatch. "It is even more original than that great success. 'The Little Brown Jug at Kildare' is quite the most cheerful thing that has happened in America in a month of Sundays."

New Revell Books

CAROLINE ATWATER MASON Author of "A Lily of France"

The Binding of the Strong

Quite without intent, this book of the love story of John Milton comes just as Cambridge University is celebrating the Tercentenary of his birth. Mrs. Mason has told the story as a skilful novelist would tell it. She has not departed in a single item from the most painstaking historical fact, and the failure of the hopeless passion of the great and saintly man for Delme Davies carries straight to our hearts. Cloth, $1.50

W. J. DAWSON Author of "A Prophet in Babylon"

A Soldier of the Future

Every one of Dr. Dawson's novels has a vital bearing on some great question of the day and hour, and he does not deny that this is a novel with a purpose. He has some radical ideas on what the church and the minister of to-day should do and be. His characters are all real and one feels a strange awe as page after page draws one closer into the net of his conclusions. Cloth, $1.50

THE NEGRO IN AFRICA

The Jungle Folk of Africa

ROBERT H. MILLIGAN

"Remarkable for its vitality, picturesqueness, humor and literary quality. Mr. Milligan saw a lot during his seven African years, and saw it all very clearly. He presents this to us delightfully; nobody has written a more instructive and entertaining book about West Africa than Mr. Milligan."—N. Y. Times. Illustrated, net, $1.50

THE NEGRO IN AMERICA

John Jasper

The Unmatched Negro Preacher and Philosopher

W. E. HATCHER

The famous lecture, "The Sun Do Move," by which peculiar contention Jasper has ever been misjudged, is included with other sayings of this remarkable old colored man in this biography. Powerful in its simplicity and faith, this record explains easily the wonderful influence he became in the community of which he was a part. Illustrated, net, $1.00

To be issued in 14 volumes.

The Reader's Library

W. J. and C. W. DAWSON

Designed to meet the rapidly growing taste for the finest products of literature which have already attained classical value and importance. The object is thus to present in a concise form a series of volumes, dealing with the growth and development of the various modes of literary expression.

TWO BOOKS THAT WILL BRIGHTEN A DAY

Judge West's Opinion

REPORTED BY A NEIGHBOR

The Creator of the Character of "Judge West" prefers to remain unknown, although his literary work is well and favorably known on both sides of the Atlantic. A more delightful book than this, with so mingled a charm, is not often found. The "Judge" is neither a philosopher nor a poet nor a wit, yet he is all of them combined. Cloth, $1.00 net

The Knack of It

CHARLES BATTELL LOOMIS

Charles Battell Loomis has been called "a humorist and a thinker;" everything he writes is thoroughly entertaining. His new work is written in his peculiarly droll and fascinating way. Full of optimism and subtle counsel, it reveals exceptional individuality as well as a keen knowledge of human nature, blended with delightful humor. Cloth, 75 cents net

THE MAN WITHOUT A HEAD

By TYLER [DE SAIX

The
says:—

"We recommend it very heartily to all readers who enjoy a horror tale of fine dimensions. It is as creepy and pleasantly uncomfortable a tale as has appeared for years. If you are seeking sensations, make the opportunity to read it in the small hours of the morning in a lonely country house. Beyond the sheer terror which the book inspires, there is an admirable plot, half a dozen very clear cut characters, and a crisp, nervous style of narrative which is exceedingly refreshing. This last alone would distinguish it from the general run of novels of its kind."

In other words, the story is in for as fine a success in America as it is having in Great Britain. Witness:

"A masterly detective story."—London Daily Chronicle.

"A triumph in detective fiction."—Manchester Courier.

"A rare achievement of the constructive imagination."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

"This volume makes the sensational novel a work of art, a piece of literature."—London Morning Leader.

 "Consummate skill and wonderful, almost uncanny ingenuity. The story is fairly ablaze with plot and counterplot, with a climax at each corner."—London Daily Express.

EXTRACTS FROM NOTICES OF THE AUTHOR'S WORKS

"In the novels of Curtis Yorke there is an abiding charm."—Yorkshire Post.

"Curtis Yorke, in her many novels, has a happy gift for portraying the tender emotions. There is always a charm about Curtis Yorke's books—partly because she has the gift of natural, sympathetic dialogue."—The Times (London).

"Whether grave or gay, Curtis Yorke is a "raconteur" whose imagination and vivacity are unfailing. Few, moreover, have in the same degree the versatility which enables her to provoke peals of laughter and move almost to tears. The writer is natural, realistic and entertaining."—London Morning Post.

THE QUEEN'S GATE MYSTERY

By CAPTAIN HENRY CURTIES, author of "A Bride on Trust," etc.

Here is a novel with all the elements of success, essentially modern in its setting and bristling with incident. That the murder of a London tradesman should affect the map of Europe seems wildly improbable, but such is the ingenuity of Captain Curties that on laying down the book the reader is bound to confess that it all might very well have happened in real life. The characters are exceedingly well drawn, and the author's style is far more vivacious than is usually the case in fiction of a sensational kind.

This series includes sixty Imperial De Luxe volumes complete, unaltered, and unabridged; no extracts or abridgments.

Paper. The deckle-edge, velvet-finish paper used in these volumes has been made especially to our order.

Type. The type is large, readable, new, clear, and artistic. The type-page is $65\frac{5}{8} \times 37\frac{7}{8}$ inches; the margins are liberal.

Presswork. Every volume has been printed by expert pressmen, the presses having been run at reduced speed to secure ideal results and perfect register.

Bindings. The books are bound in buckram or in half morocco, at the option of the purchaser. The volumes are of octavo size — $9\frac{1}{2} \times 6\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Mechanical Perfection. These sixty volumes are as nearly perfect mechanically as they can be made by the latest improvements in printing, engraving, photogravure, color lithography, paper manufacture, and de luxe bindings at the beginning of the twentieth century.

The art features comprise photogravures from famous paintings and classic sculpture, portraits of authors, mediæval illuminations and palæographic manuscripts, choice examples of early printing and engraving, and various other illustrations.

The new book by the author of"The Road to Damascus""He that Eateth Bread with Me," etc.

KITTY SARGENT divorced her playwright husband because she wearied of their struggle with poverty. She married again. He brought up their daughter, Christina, "a most distracting combination of innocence and cynicism."

Christina has a boy-and-girl love affair, and to bring home to her the meaning of marriage, about which she has ideas of her own, her father sends her to her mother, by now for five years a widow, and a charming and popular society woman. The result is illuminating. The reader marvels at the author's penetration and perception of character, at the divination of feeling and the keen, inevitable accuracy of results.

A brilliant and satisfying novel of true and tender love.

Ouida's long promised novel

Helianthus

Nearly the whole of this glowing, swift-moving story was in type before the author's death and the proofs had been corrected by her. Long retirement seems to have only sharpened her powers of observation, and there is many a touch in the working out of her complex plot which goes straight to the weakest point of one or another of the kingdoms of Europe.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY announce that "Helianthus," the long awaited novel by Ouida, which was first promised some years ago, is to be published next month. Nearly all of the story had been put in type before the author's death, and the proofs had been corrected by her.

THE MCCLURE COMPANY has just published a new novel by Booth Tarkington, entitled "The Quest of Quesnay." The scene of the story is laid in the inn of the "Three Pigeons," in the little Norman village of Quesnay. Here the author brings together the characters of his story—painters and American tourists—the romance being recounted by one of these, a rich American amateur.

THE CENTURY COMPANY has just published "The Revolt of Anne Royle," a new story by Helen R. Martin, author of "Tillie;" also, "Harry's Island," by Ralph Henry Barbour, the story of the adventures incident to a summer's camping on an island in the Hudson River, the characters being the same as those who figured in the author's two previous books, "The Crimson Sweater" and "Tom, Dick, and Harriet."

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready Swinburne's latest prose work, "The Age of Shakespeare," which is concerned with those dramatists who in the light of Shakespeare are lesser known, or, as the author's verse phrases it, "those whose glory shone round Shakespeare;" a new novel by Will N. Harben, entitled "Gilbert Neal," in which the author takes up the subject of "affinities;" also, a book for young children by Gabrielle E. Jackson, entitled "Wee Winkles at the Mountains."

DANA ESTES & Co. have just ready a new novel by Curtis Yorke, author of "Only Betty," etc., entitled "The Other Sara," which is marked by the author's happy gift for portraying the tender emotions, and by her power as a raconteur. They will bring out next week "The Queen's Gate Mystery," by Captain Henry Curties, author of "A Bride on Trust," etc., dealing with the mystery of the murder of a London tradesman, which, by the author's ingenuity, is made to affect the map of the whole of Europe.

THE PENN PUBLISHING COMPANY have brought out an attractive novelty entitled "My Post-Card Cook Book," by C. D. Mitchell and R. C. Baxter. The book consists of a combined post-card album and informal cook book, with thirty-two return post-cards to be torn out of the book and sent to friends with a request for an original recipe. When the return card comes back it is placed in the slits prepared for it on one of the album pages. When completed in this way the book is an attractive and useful souvenir.

D. APPLETON & COMPANY will publish at once a new book by Maxwell Gray, entitled "The Suspicions of Mrs. Allonby," which has for its heroine the pretty, frivolous wife of a London journalist, who, in search of distraction as a relief from what she considers her prosaic life, gets herself into difficulties from which she is finally rescued by her husband. They have also nearly ready an exciting detective story by Henry Kitchell Webster, entitled "The Whispering Man," which deals with the murder of a physician. It is said that the murderer's method of concealment has probably never been surpassed for ingenuity and daring.

Anderson, Galusha. The story of a border city [St. Louis] during the civil war; with 12 portraits and views. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1908. c. 8+385 p. il. O. cl., $1.50 net.

The author was the pastor of a prominent church in the city of Saint Louis from 1858 to 1866, and his personal observations made at that time throw a new light on one phase of the Civil War. During this period the state of Missouri was disputed ground. Its citizens were divided between secession and union, between slavery and emancipation. Saint Louis naturally bore the brunt of the struggle, and Dr. Anderson's account of the strenuous life there during the Rebellion opens up a comparatively unworked field.

Anthony, W: Arnold. Lecture-notes on the theory of electrical measurements; prepared for the third-year classes of the Cooper Union night-school of science. 3d ed., rev. by Albert Ball. N. Y., John Wiley & Sons, 1908. c. 9+122 p. figs. 12°, cl., $1.

Davis, Mrs. Mary Evelyn Moore. The moons of Balbanca. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1908. c. 180 p. pls. D. cl., †$1.

The story of a year in the life of a group of children in the French quarter of New Orleans. The principal character is an imaginative boy, equally fond of Robin Hood tales and of Indian legends. It is he who devises emblems for the several months—the "moons" of the title—and suggests all sorts of ways for having good times.

Day, Leigh Cross. Borderland and the blue beyond. Akron, O., Saalfeld Pub. Co., 1908. c. no paging, obl. Q. bds., $2.50.

The author-artist has used her camera, pen and brush to tell in verse and picture of that indefinable time when children "linger with reluctant feet" on the border of manhood and womanhood. Photographs of lads and lassies, together with bits of alluring landscape, make this book most original and artistic.

Del Lungo, Isidore. Women of Florence; tr. by Mary C. Steegmann; with preface by Dr. Guido Biagi. N. Y., Doubleday, Page & Co., 1908. 36+299 p. pls. O. cl., *$2.25 net.

The author, a distinguished Italian historian, unearthed a wealth of personal material of some of the famous women of the Renaissance, which makes this volume an unusually illuminating record of those times. The binding design is after a Cinquecento original and the title design has been adapted from an ancient manuscript in the British Museum. The book contains two colored plates and many reproductions in half-tone.

De Monvel, Roger Boutet. Beau Brummell and his times; with a chapter on dress and the dandies by Mary Craven. Phil., Lippincott, 1908. 199 p. pls. pors. O. cl., *$2.50 net.

The life of the "prince of the dandies" is rich in dramatic scenes, from the time of his first appearance at the English court as the favorite of the Prince of Wales (afterward George IV.) down to his miserable death in an asylum in France. The attitude of the author is throughout, on the whole, sympathetic. There is no unnecessary moralizing; the man is presented as he was, with his follies and defects, but with all that made his strange charm. A vivid picture is supplied of the brilliant, heartless and witty society under the Regent.

The author, who has published part of this work in The Century, treats authoritatively, yet readably, first with the mental activity of the young, then refutes the statement of Dr. Osler that the world's work has been done before the age of forty. Dr. Dorland dwells on what the world would have missed if such had been the case and considers the scene of mental activity lies between the ages of forty and sixty—and adds a valuable and interesting table of the records of four hundred famous men upon which his conclusions are based.

These memoirs give the history of a varied career in American public life. The author's experiences begin as a soldier in the Civil War, then lapsing into private life he becomes the head of perhaps one of the largest industrial establishments of Massachusetts. He then is elected for two terms to Congress, during the last Cleveland administration and when the problems preceding the Spanish war were absorbing McKinley's administration. During the Spanish war Gen. Draper was ambassador to Italy.

Gray, Asa. Gray's new manual of botany: handbook of the flowering plants and ferns of the central and northeastern United States and adjacent Canada; rearranged and extensively revised by B: Lincoln Robinson and Merritt Lydon Fernald. 7th ed. N. Y., American Book Co., [1908.] c. 926 p. il. O. cl., $2.50.

"In bringing Dr. Asa Gray's well-known manual to date and into accord with modern views of classification and nomenclature, the present editors have found it necessary to rearrange it throughout, rewrite considerable portions, modify at least slightly nearly all the descriptions, and adopt certain principles of nomenclature (notably the one relating to the first specific name) somewhat at variance with Dr. Gray's practice. Although these changes have been numerous and, in some respects fundamental, it is believed that they are all in thorough accord with the liberal spirit of progress which characterized the author's own successive publications."—Preface. The first editor is professor of systematic botany in Harvard University, and the second is assistant professor.

The little heroine, left an orphan at an early age, is brought up by two hard-hearted old spinster step-sisters, who always find fault with her and constantly recall her dependence on them in a most cruel manner. The child is imaginative and imbibes from old books of her young mother many odd fancies of knights and fairies, evil spirits, etc., which she applies to her wicked step-sisters and other bad people who she believes have been enchanted. The book opens with her young mother's love story, and the acts of her father's cruel uncle which broke her mother's heart. The little heroine finally conquers this "enchanted" great-uncle.

The first novel from the pen of Miss Johnston in the last four years. It is a romance of the days of Thomas Jefferson; the plot centers about the Napoleonic character of Lewis Rand, a leading Virginia lawyer, who becomes one of the great men of his party and time. He is a self-made man of the people, and when he confesses his love for Jacqueline Churchill, whose two aristocratic uncles are uncompromising Federalists, the result is quite dramatic. Jefferson and Aaron Burr appear in the story. There is a rich background of the suave old Virginia life.

This book is the first of a series of three, which, when completed, will deal with the adventures of two Ohio boys in search of a fortune in the romantic days of '49, when gold was first discovered in California. This first book narrates their trip down the Ohio, up the Mississippi and Missouri, across the plains in a prairie-schooner to the point where they come in sight of their promised land.

Madison, Mrs. Lucy Foster. Peggy Owen: a story for girls; il. by Clyde O. Deland. Phil., Penn Publishing Co., 1908. c. 456 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The adventures of a Quaker maiden in Philadelphia during the Revolution. She lives opposite the State House and Liberty Bell. Washington, Franklin, Robert Morris and Betsy Ross figure in the story, which also pictures the conflict between conscience and patriotism that many of the Quakers of the period went through.

Records the last years at West Point of Cadet Douglas Atwell; he again wins football honors, and is prominent in the movement to abolish hazing. A rival makes an accusation against him of dishonorable conduct, which he unfortunately cannot disprove and which he struggles with for two years, but in the end being entirely exonerated.

Manchester, Arthur L. Twelve lessons in the fundamentals of voice production. Bost.,

Oliver Ditson Co., [1908.] c. 92 p. il. O. (Music students' lib.) cl., $1.

Author is director of music and professor of voice culture at Converse College. This series of lessons first appeared in The Musician; it has been revised for its present form. The book is not intended to be a treatise on singing, nor does it profess to be an exhaustive treatment of tone production. It deals only with the fundamentals, the basis on which all more advanced work must rest.

Marquis, Albert Nelson, ed. The book of Detroiters: a biographical dictionary of leading living men of the city of Detroit. Chic., A. N. Marquis & Co., 1908. c. 5-499 p. O. cl., $10.

"The book of Detroiters" is the result of a conscientious effort to collect into a single volume of handy dimensions, condensed, accurate, authentic life-sketches of the men who have attained places of distinctive creditability in the city of Detroit.

Marriott, Crittenden. Uncle Sam's business, told to young Americans. N. Y., Harper, 1908. c. 12+321 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Designed to wake young minds to a consciousness of the government's services for the people, including land draining, mail and bank business, pure food tests, forest protection, etc. The author has arranged his chapters to show, first, "Uncle Sam as a ruler"—law-maker, ambassador, soldier, etc.; next, as "Captain of industry"—selling lands, distributing public money, etc.; and, finally, as "Public servant"—farmer or weatherman, as the case may be. An important book from every point of view.

Martin, Mrs. Helen Reimensnyder. The revolt of Anne Royle. N. Y., Century Co., 1908. c. 387 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Now, for the first time, the author of "Tillie, a Mennonite maid" has departed from the field of her earlier work as a delineator of the Pennsylvania Dutch to write a love-story of people of Pennsylvania, but not of any sect or religion. There is a winsome little heroine, who is ruled with a rod of iron by her brilliant father, whose tragic story is a mystery for many chapters. Anne's "revolt" ends beautifully for her and a man most worthy of her love.

Miller, C. C., M.D. The cure of rupture by paraffin injections; comprising a description of a method of treatment destined to occupy an important place as a cure for rupture, owing to the extreme simplicity of the technic and its advantages from an economic standpoint. Author, formerly professor of physical diagnosis, hygiene and diseases of children in the Eclectic Medical Institute, Cincinnati. The necessity for a new edition of this work gave the opportunity for a thorough revision of it. The chapter on "Infantile therapeutics" has been omitted, the author feeling there is an abundant literature on therapeutics to be had. Several new sections have been added and much of the work practically rewritten. Some conditions, not considered in the first edition, have now been given attention, and illustrations have been added to make the text more clear.

New Mexico [Territory.] Cattle Sanitary Board. The "Spitfire" is a ship and also the pet name of the owner's daughter, as good a sailor as her irascible father. The latter is accused of cheating the custom house and trading in valuable jewels. One day two strangers come on board showing letters that they shall have charge of the ship. The daughter submits. Then ensues an adventurous voyage and an ending, warning against faith in circumstantial evidence.

Perry, Frances M. A punctuation primer; with notes on the preparation of manuscript. N. Y., American Book Co., [1908.] c. 103 p. S. cl., 30 c.

Author is associate professor of rhetoric and composition in Wellesley College. The distinctive feature of this manual is that it takes grammatical structure rather than punctuation marks as the basis for generalization and division. This makes it possible to comprehend, by a few easily understood and easily remembered rules, all that it is essential to know about punctuation. Besides punctuation, there are chapters on Paragraph division; Quotations; Capitalization; Proper names; Compound words; Authorities and bibliographies, etc.

Pier, Arthur Stanwood. The new boy: a story of St. Timothy. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1908. c. 273 p. pls. D. cl., $1.50.

By the author of "Harding of St. Timothy's," etc. The young hero comes from the West, bringing an element that is entirely his own, as he has been taught by his father in a somewhat unorthodox but thoroughly effective way. He wins his way in athletics and is no less successful in gaining the friendship of the other boys and the approval of his teachers.

Price, W. T. The analysis of play construction and dramatic principle. N. Y., W. T. Price, [1908.] c. 6+415 p. O. cl., $5.

This book is designed as a text-book of systematic instruction in the art of playwriting. It discusses and formulates dramatic principle anew and brings the study down to the methods used in the workshop of the practical dramatist. In the opening chapter it is contended that by no possibility can any human being be born a playwright—with a knowledge of the technique of the art, which must be learned. By the author of "The technique of the drama."

Author is associate professor of public speaking in the University of Texas. This book, the result of practical experience in the classroom, has been prepared to supply a treatise on extempore speaking, primarily for school and college students. While the subject has been fully treated in other works, few are adapted for use as text-book. The aim here is to present the subject in a manner adapted to the needs of both teachers and students by reclassifying principles and methods, making the methods as specific in treatment as possible. At the end of each chapter and in an appendix suggestions and topics for class exercises are given. A large number of modern speeches have been incorporated.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

OCTOBER 3, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

POINTERS FOR HALLOWE'EN.

KEEP in mind Hallowe'en, which is beginning to offer the bookseller a good opportunity to dispose of some very profitable side lines. A number of manufacturers have already placed on the market a variety of attractive novelties on which the dealer may be sure of a good profit; but in addition to the conventional things manufactured by others, and which are handled by every other dealer, each bookseller should put on his thinking cap and invent novelties of his own. There is a pumpkin pie, for example—very attractive—which requires simply a tin dish, some crinkly brown paper for the crust, and a stuffing of diminutive souvenirs which every bookseller keeps on hand, tied with a lot of string. With helpful suggestions such as this and others, at this time of the year, to the mothers and daughters on the lookout for surprises for their parties during the winter, the bookseller will make for himself many friends and customers for everything that goes into the making of the souvenirs suggested. Even if the customer later undertakes to appropriate the bookseller's ideas he will very likely need paper, string, glue and the other paraphernalia required. Let the bookseller invite the co-operation of his family and that of the girls in the store—he will no doubt draw out enough ideas to keep him busy for a year.

Nature will also supply material for Hallowe'en and Thanksgiving, in the stalks and ears of corn, pumpkins, etc., for decoration. A few years ago Horace Jackson, of Bridgeport, Conn., cornered a lot of pumpkins, which, when displayed in his window just before Thanksgiving Day proved a profitable attraction—the pumpkins went off "like hot cakes," and the store was kept full with shoppers all day and late into the evening.

And lastly don't forget the post-card appropriate to the season, and the thousand and one little conceits and knick knacks which are waiting to be "rung in" on any or every occasion. If they don't sell this month they are bound to go off next month or any time. They will, at any rate, never grow stale.

"ENCLOSURES."

THE BOORUM & PEASE COMPANY, the well-known blank book manufacturers, hereafter propose to handle "enclosures" on the plan outlined in the following circular addressed by them to their customers:

"The enclosure business with us has grown to such an extent that it is impossible to handle it with out present force. We, therefore, have decided to add sufficient help to properly care for this work, and beg to announce to the trade than on and after September 1 we will be prepared to receive in our shipping department all enclosures that any of our friends want to have forwarded to us, giving proper receipt for same.

"We will arrange to forward these packages in good order, subject, of course, to the regular transportation risks. For this work we propose to make a nominal charge which, for the present, will be as follows: Packages about size 8 x 10, 5 cents; packages about size 10 x 15, 10 cents; packages about size 15 x 25, 15 cents; and larger packages 25 cents and up according to size, weight, etc. This will include boxing, cartage, etc.

"If after closely following the cost of handling these enclosures for a given period, it is found that these charges are too high or too low, we will change accordingly, as it is not our intention to make this department a source of profit, but simply an accommodation to the trade, insuring more prompt and careful deliveries than we have heretofore been able to give."

Year by year, as trade expands, and the demands upon wholesalers and jobbers become greater, the forwarding of "enclosures" has become more and more burdensome and expensive, so that the time is at hand when those who profit by the accommodation must face the problem of bearing their share of the cost. The plan adopted by the Boorum & Pease Company seems a simple and just one to all concerned, and will no doubt be generally adopted.

THE NEW HOME OF THE AMERICAN BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY.

THE new home of the American Baptist Publication Society, the Roger Williams Building, Philadelphia, was formally opened with appropriate ceremonies, September 29. The store of the Society, occupying the entire first floor and mezzanine floor of the building, was beautifully decorated, and, with its well-arranged displays of Bibles, books, Sunday-school supplies, gift designs, etc., was a constant attraction during the entire day for the many who thronged its aisles. Its mezzanine alcoves were crowded by the appreciative guests, and their homelike arrangement won high encomiums. Visitors from Philadelphia and its suburbs gave enthusiastic welcome to the new store with its many and unusual advantages, and opinion was freely expressed that a new era in local book selling had been inaugurated. It was the generally voiced opinion that no greater or more attractive book display has ever been made in this country than is made by the well-filled tables and easily reached shelves of this new store, supplemented by the tasteful displays in its six large show windows.

Public services were held in the assembly room on the second floor at 3 and 8 p.m. In the afternoon addresses were made by representatives of the religious publishing houses and boards of Philadelphia; in the evening, by H. L. Morehouse, D.D., representing the American Baptist Home Mission Society; J. F. Elder, D.D., of the American Baptist Missionary Union; and R. J. Willingham, D.D., representing the Foreign Board of the Southern Baptist Convention.

The general arrangement of the building won high praise from all who inspected it, and the unanimous opinion that the Society had not only made a profitable investment, but had, as well, erected a structure that would long be an honor to the city and to the denomination.

THE ROGER WILLIAMS BUILDING.

The new building of the American Baptist Publication Society is finely located on the corner of two prominent streets—Chestnut and Seventeenth—in Philadelphia, and is an honor to the denomination it represents. The ground area is forty-four by one hundred and twenty-two feet, and the height is seven stories. The frame is steel, with walls to the second floor of granite; above this light Kitting brick, with terra-cotta facings.

The ground floor and basement are occupied by the sales and shipping departments of the Society. On the second floor are located the executive, business, missionary and editorial offices, with board room and an assembly hall with seating capacity of two hundred and fifty.

The upper five floors are given to general office uses, and are rented to an exceptional class of tenants, including many representatives of denominational interests.

The building is thoroughly equipped with all modern appliances and, with its location in an advancing business centre, a steady appreciation in its value is assured for years to come.

SUMMARY OF THE WORK OF THE SOCIETY.

Commemorating the formal opening of its new home, the American Baptist Publication Society has issued an attractive brochure of sixty-four pages, handsomely illustrated, entitled "After Eight Decades."

This is illustrative and descriptive of the new building and comprises, as well, the comprehensive story of the Society from its modest beginning, in 1824, as the "Baptist General Tract Society," through the eighty-odd years, to its praiseworthy proportions of today. Step by step is briefly traced the up-building of its fortunes, and the story of its trials and successes is faithfully told by the pen of the impartial writer.

Originally formed for the publication and dissemination of tracts, which at that time "constituted nearly all the religious literature of the day," the earlier years of the Society were confined to this work, and it was not until 1840 that book publication was begun; but type-setting and presswork were done by others, and the small venture, though earnestly made, gave no promise of the greatness of the future. Through the national panics the steady growth of the Society is carefully traced, and credit duly given to those whose guidance proved so sure and successful. Chief among these is worthily named Benjamin Griffith, D.D., whose strong hand held the helm for more than thirty-six years—from 1857 to 1893.

The record of the missionary and Bible work of the Society fills the most important chapter. First in colportage, the carrying forward of this most efficient work—from the "toil-some stretches across sun-scorched prairies and through pathless hills" to the commodious chapel cars—is portrayed in a manner that holds the interest and never grows tiresome. Touching tribute is paid to the memory of "the great missionary of the West," John Mason Peck, D.D., to whom the organization of this forceful means was chiefly due.

The results of the work of this department are carefully epitomized, telling the millions of Bibles, books, and tracts distributed, the millions helped toward the truth; the pastors, students, and schools aided, the churches instituted, and how one-half of the Sunday-schools in the denomination owe their organization to this branch of the Society's work.

The gradual growth of the book publication business to its present volume is shown, as is also the steady increase of the Society's periodicals, with their careful editing, both in number and circulation.

In closing the sketch of the Society in "After Eight Decades," the writer says: "As the Society passes the milestone of 1908, a brief retrospect of the work and growth of the Publishing Department during the past eighty-odd years is interesting and instructive. During the first fifty years of its existence the total receipts were $3,062,038.85; for the next twenty-five years, $11,291,351.69; since then, $6,230,737.49; making the total receipts from the founding of the Society until the close of the past fiscal year. (March 31, 1908,) $20,584,128.03. During this period the Publishing Department has contributed many Step by step is briefly traced the upbuilding of its fortunes, and the story of its trials and successes is faithfully told by the pen of the impartial writer.

Originally formed for the publication and dissemination of tracts, which at that time "constituted nearly all the religious literature of the day," the earlier years of the Society were confined to this work, and it was not until 1840 that book publication was begun; but type-setting and presswork were done by others, and the small venture, though earnestly made, gave no promise of the greatness of the future. Through the national panics the steady growth of the Society is carefully traced, and credit duly given to those whose guidance proved so sure and successful. Chief among these is worthily named Benjamin Griffith, D.D., whose strong hand held the helm for more than thirty-six years—from 1857 to 1893.

The record of the missionary and Bible work of the Society fills the most important chapter. First in colportage, the carrying forward of this most efficient work—from the "toil-some stretches across sun-scorched prairies and through pathless hills" to the commodious chapel cars—is portrayed in a manner that holds the interest and never grows tiresome. Touching tribute is paid to the memory of "the great missionary of the West," John Mason Peck, D.D., to whom the organization of this forceful means was chiefly due.

The results of the work of this department are carefully epitomized, telling the millions of Bibles, books, and tracts distributed, the millions helped toward the truth; the pastors, students, and schools aided, the churches instituted, and how one-half of the Sunday-schools in the denomination owe their organization to this branch of the Society's work.

The gradual growth of the book publication business to its present volume is shown, as is also the steady increase of the Society's periodicals, with their careful editing, both in number and circulation.

In closing the sketch of the Society in "After Eight Decades," the writer says: "As the Society passes the milestone of 1908, a brief retrospect of the work and growth of the Publishing Department during the past eighty-odd years is interesting and instructive. During the first fifty years of its existence the total receipts were $3,062,038.85; for the next twenty-five years, $11,291,351.69; since then, $6,230,737.49; making the total receipts from the founding of the Society until the close of the past fiscal year, (March 31, 1908,) $20,584,128.03. During this period the Publishing Department has contributed many thousands of dollars to the Bible and Missionary Departments, and, in addition, has paid all the expenses of administration of these departments. Every dollar in any way received for benevolent and missionary work has been expended directly upon and in the field. Paying all its own expenses, the Publishing Department's gifts, through different channels, to the denomination amount to an average yearly value of $30,000.

"Above all this, and despite the demoralization that has prevailed throughout the book trades for a number of years, the net assets of the Publishing Department have risen from the zero beginning to the present total of $970,112.17."

COMMUNICATIONS.

"BILLY" SUNDAY NOT A SMASHER. HISTORY CORRECTED.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: In your issue of the 19th inst. we notice a very thrilling account, [quoted from the Chicago Inter-Ocean,] of how "Billy" Sunday, "armed with a sledge hammer, ran along the form tables in our press room and smashed plates right and left." This is really a wonderfully thrilling narrative with absolutely no truth in it.

"Billy" Sunday is an emotional man, but in our opinion without the necessary pugnacity or nerve to do anything which this article describes. Incidentally, we might say that if he had tried it, he would "never have lived to tell the tale."

A concern in Decatur, Ill., sent a compilation of his sermons to us to be printed and bound. We did the work and they paid us for it. Mr. Sunday objected because the book did not contain a full report of his sermons, and he also discovered that he could make some money by publishing a book himself, and therefore he made arrangements with the men who published the book to suppress the edition.

Then "Billy" Sunday came to our office in a very modest way, paid us the remainder of our bill and asked that we sell the plates and printed sheets on hand and send him a check for the proceeds, which we did, but there was no plate smashing or any other acrobatic exercises.

Some sensational reporter who was probably getting a penny a line for the stuff he wrote conceived this nonsensical story and sold it to some of the yellow journals in Chicago and elsewhere who are constantly looking for sensationalism of this character.

We think you will agree with us that it is unfortunate that newspapers allow so much publicity to fanatical, evangelical enthusiasts who attempt to place religion on a "circus clown" basis. W. B. CONKEY, President,

A QUESTION OF PUBLISHING PROPRIETY.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: May I, as the authorized biographer of the late Thomas Bailey Aldrich, call attention to what seems to me a breach of publishing propriety in a volume entitled "Poems of Thomas Bailey Aldrich," just issued by Thomas Y. Crowell & Company. This volume, which is announced by its publishers as "a new collected edition," is composed of the contents of five of Aldrich's first six volumes of verse, all written before he was thirty years old. It contains 152 pieces, of which 121 were discarded by the poet from his own collected editions, the Household and the Riverside; while of the 31 pieces that were retained by him the text of many has been so thoroughly revised that the earlier and cruder forms are scarcely recognizable by those who have known them in later and legitimate editions. There are in Aldrich's collected Poetical Works 230 poems. There are, therefore, 199 of these, embodying the poet's most mature and finest work, not to be found in this "new collected edition," though the publishers have made amends for this deficiency by printing several pieces twice.

The ethical question of the right of such a piece of book-making to masquerade as a "new collected edition" I do not raise; but as to the propriety of representing, without explanation or apology, the most fastidious of American poets by a compilation of his discarded juvenilia there can be, I think, no two minds. I am, sir,

Respectfully yours,

FERRIS GREENSLET.

4 PARK STREET, BOSTON, September 21, 1908.

REPLY OF THOMAS Y. CROWELL & CO.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: Referring to Mr. Greenslet's letter will say, that our edition of "Aldrich's Poems" is reprinted from the editions of 1855, 1858, 1861 and 1865 and the dates are given in the table of contents. These early editions are very scarce and command high prices, and as most of the poems are not included in later editions, the volume is sure to have considerable interest for many readers.

Mr. Greenslet is justified in his criticism of the wording of our title-page and of our advertising matter, and we shall take immediate steps to have both of these changed to read "The Early Poems of Thomas Bailey Aldrich."

Thanking you for bringing the matter to our attention, we remain

Yours very truly,

T. Y. CROWELL & CO.

ARTHUR W. CALDWELL is now associated with The Werner Company, of Akron, O., and will represent his concern as a traveller in both the East and the West.

OBITUARY NOTES.

FRANK SQUIER, of the wholesale paper firm of Perkins & Squier, died on Friday, September 25, at his residence, 32 Prospect Park West, Brooklyn, N. Y. When Mr. Squier was abroad during the summer he suffered from a paralytic stroke, but the immediate cause of his death was pneumonia. Mr. Squier was born at Charlton, N. Y., sixty-eight years ago, and was a descendant of ancestors of renown in Puritan and Revolutionary history. After an education in Poulton, Vt., he taught school at first; then came to New York City and entered the employ of the stationery firm of J. Q. Preble & Co. Some years later he went to the wholesale paper firm of Perkins, Goodwin & Co., and after thirty-eight years was taken into the firm in 1881. In 1905 he became a partner in the wholesale paper firm of Perkins & Squier, a position he held to the end. Mr. Squier was a man of varied interests and pronounced public spirit. He was devoted to art, painted as a pastime and was one of the prime movers in the organization of the Brooklyn Art Club, of which he was treasurer. For many years he was head of the Park Department of Brooklyn, and many of the beauties of Prospect Park were of his planning and carried out under his administration.

PROFESSOR FRANK PARSONS, of the Boston University, died in Boston on September 26. Professor Parsons was born November 14, 1854, at Mount Holly, N. J., and in 1873 was graduated in the mathematical and engineering course at Cornell. After engaging in railroad engineering and teaching school he studied law and was admitted to the bar in Boston. While practising this profession he wrote a number of text books and lectured on economics and sociology. From 1897 to 1900 he was professor of history and political science in the Kansas Agricultural College. Since 1892 he had been lecturer in law at Boston University. He was professor of political science and dean of the College of Liberal Arts in Ruskin University, in Missouri, and director of the department of history in the Bureau of Economic Research, Washington. He travelled in Europe and America studying railroads and co-operative institutions, and lectured in many cities. Professor Parsons was the author of a number of works, including "The World's Best Books," "Our Country's Need," "The Drift of Our Time," "The New Political Economy," "The City for the People," "The Story of New Zealand," "The Railways, the Trusts and the People," and contributed to many magazines.

PROFESSOR ERNEST FRANCISCO FENELLOSA, the well-known educator, is reported to have died on September 25, as he was about to sail for America. Professor Fenellosa was born in Salem, Mass., February 18, 1853. He was graduated from Harvard in 1874, and from 1878 to 1880 was professor of political economy in Tokio University, Japan. From 1880 to 1886 he was professor of philosophy and logic in the same institution, and from 1886 to 1887 he was Imperial Fine Arts Commissioner of Japan. He then became professor of æsthetics and manager of the Tokio Fine Arts Academy and manager of the art department of the Imperial Museum in Tokio for three years. Returning to this country he became curator of the department of Oriental art in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, holding that place for six years, when he returned to Japan to become professor of English literature in the Imperial Normal School in Tokio until 1900. He afterwards lectured on Oriental subjects in this country. Professor Fenellosa was the author of two volumes of poems, "East and West" and "The Discovery of America and Other Poems," an "Outline History of Ukiyo-Ye" and various monographs on Oriental art for the Boston Museum, and also on the art, literature and history of Japan and China. Mrs. Fenellosa is an author, best known by her pen name of "Sidney McCall." One of her works is the novel "Truth Dexter."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE author of "Joseph Vance" promises another novel, to be entitled "Blind Jim."

IT is reported from Stockholm that this year's Nobel prize for the best literary output will probably be awarded to Algernon Charles Swinburne.

SEUMAS MACMANUS, the Irish author, arrived in New York September 25. He will remain in this country during the winter to lecture in the large cities throughout the country.

DR. WILLIAM ELLIOT GRIFFIS has been honored by the Emperor of Japan with the decoration of the Order of the Rising Sun, which is given only to distinguished foreigners who have aided in the modern civilization of Japan.

PROFESSOR MAHAFFY has made arrangements to deliver his Lowell lectures at Boston in December and January next. His subject will be the obligations of modern civilization to the Greeks, and will cover diverse fields of science, art and philosophy.

PREPARATIONS are being made in New Haven, Conn., to celebrate the 150th anniversary of Noah Webster's birth. Webster was a Connecticut man, having been born in Hartford, October 16, 1758. He entered Yale in 1774, served in the Revolutionary War in 1777, and was graduated from Yale in 1778. Webster was already distinguished as an author and journalist when, at the age of forty-three, he began work on his "American Dictionary of the English Language," the first edition of which he brought out in 1828.

HOLLIS GODFREY, whose "Man Who Ended War" has just been brought out by Little, Brown & Co., is a newcomer on the fiction field. He is not a new writer, however, for he has done much miscellaneous writing for the Boston Transcript, and is the author of a valuable set of papers on technical subjects, which have appeared in the Atlantic Monthly as well as of a serial which the Youth's Com- panion will run. The man who ended war was a mysterious individual who wielded an unknown power by means of which he was able at will to force the nations to come to universal peace. The quest of a New York reporter, his scientist friend, and the latter's sister to discover the man and the nature of his power gives Mr. Godfrey a chance to exercise his most vivid imagination, and his fullest scientific knowledge. The book is a swinging tale of adventure, with a sweet and dainty love story to keep the balance of interest.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS has just brought out a new book by Dr. William Osler, entitled "An Alabama Student," a collection of essays dealing with aspects of the life of physicians in the United States.

CUPPLES & LEON call attention to the fact that the price of their Jack Ranger Series is $1 per volume; not $1.50, as given in their advertisement in last week's issue, nor 60 c., as given in the Index to Fall Announcements.

B. W. DODGE & Co. will publish shortly a novel by P. B. McCord, entitled "Wolf," which gives a vivid picture of primeval humanity as it existed in the marshlands of the Mississippi valley. The book is illustrated by the author.

JOHN W. LUCE & Co., Boston, will publish shortly "Evangeline," in the Birch Bark Series, with illustrations and decorations by Wallace Goldsmith; also, "Love Songs and Lyrics," by Miss Jessie A. Middleton, which will be brought out uniform in style with Miss Maynadier's "A Perfect Strength."

JOHN LANE Co. publish to-day "Dumouriez and the Defense of England Against Napoleon," by J. Holland Rose and A. M. Broadley, with reproductions of the plans of defense, portraits, etc.; also, "Kashmir, the Land of Streams and Solitudes," by P. Pirie, with 26 unusual plates in color and 100 reproductions of drawings in pen and ink.

DUFFIELD & Co. will add to their Shakespeare Library "Sources and Analogues of 'A Midsummer Night's Dream,'" by Frank Sidgwick; "Much Adoe About Nothing," in Dr. Furnivall's Old Spelling Shakespeare, founded on the quartos and folios; also, "Cymbeline" and "As You Like It," in the Lamb Shakespeare for the Young.

THE FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just brought out "A Common-Sense View of the Mind Cure," by Laura M. Westall. The scope of the book will be found to be more of an explanation of the workings of what is popularly known as the "mind cure" in the treatment of human ills than as a special argument for or against its efficacy. They have also just ready a novel by Miss Mabel Wagnalls, author of "The Stars of the Opera," etc., entitled "The Palace of Danger," in which Madame de Pompadour is the central figure.

HARPER & BROTHERS will bring out early next month a book of critical essays, by H.

M. Alden, for forty years editor of Harper's Magazine, to be entitled "Magazine Writing and the New Literature." They will bring out at the same time W. D. Howells's charming sketches of his recent vacation in Italy, entitled "Roman Holidays." Blended with the mellow reflection of the late sojourn are the youthful impressions of that first visit to Rome some forty years ago, hence it is not surprising to find Mr. Howells in the new book in real holiday mood.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just ready Rosa Nouchette Carey's annual novel for young women and girls, "The Sunny Side of the Hill." It is a simple, refreshing story, with an English setting of blue skies and village country life. They brought out last week several books of more than usual interest, among which are "Beau Brummell and His Times," by Roger Boutet De Monvel, a vivid picture of the brilliant, heartless, and witty society under the Regent; "Side-lights on Chinese Life," by Rev. J. Macgowan; and "Mountaineering in the Land of the Midnight Sun," by Mrs. Aubrey Le Blond.

A. WESSELS COMPANY have just ready "Abraham Lincoln," by George Bancroft, now first issued in a separate edition, attractively printed and bound; "The Wisdom of Abraham Lincoln," a selection of nuggets from the speeches, state papers and letters, edited by Dr. Marion Mills Miller, arranged in chronological order to aid those who want in compact form an outline of Lincoln's writings, and his views and ideas on government and statecraft; also, "Evolution in Italian Art," by Grant Allen, studies based on observations made in Italian and other galleries by an author whose trained powers of observation and a mind sensitive to life in all its aspects give interest and point to his attitude.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will bring out shortly "The Elusive Pimpernel," by Baroness Orczy, author of "The Scarlet Pimpernel," one of the most popular books of a few seasons ago. The new story will continue the adventures in the life of the Scarlet Pimpernel, as the scene of the story is laid during those exciting years of the French Revolution. They will publish at the same time "Mirage," by E. Temple Thurston, author of "The Apple of Eden," which was published by Dodd, Mead & Company a few seasons ago. This new story is a sort of English "Colonel Carter," as it is a tender story and told with such dainty art and unaffected sensibility that it is capable of charming all readers. It is, in simplest terms, the tale of the dream of an old man for whom the gates of hope and love seem about to open upon the garden of a St. Martin's summer, only to close again and remind him that the prizes of life are always for the young, and that the old must be content to look on at the game, and to remember.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have brought out for the holiday season three attractive novelties in book form. One of these is "A Guest Book of Curlicues," arranged by Clara Andrews Williams. The book contains sixty pages, on each of which a curlicue has been printed which may be elaborated by the guest. A blank space is left on each page, on which an original curlicue may be drawn and filled out as desired. The whole scheme will furnish amusement and some excitement for those who may be handy with a pencil or pen and completing the scrawled suggestion with designs. "My Ideals," by M. Bataille, is another of these novelties in which the ideals of the types of female and male beauty may be answered, and the figure in keeping with the description drawn in the space provided with the eyes shut. "After the Ball Was Over" is the third booklet, intended for ladies, in which they may keep a record of their handsomest partner, their most fascinating partner, the dress they wore, the dance they enjoyed most, etc.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just brought out "The Story of the New England Whalers," by John R. Spears; "Education and Industrial Evolution," by Professor Frank T. Carlton, of Albion College; a new and illustrated edition, in five volumes, of Dr. Henry W. Elson's "History of the United States;" "The Works of Tennyson," volume v., Eversley edition; "History of English Prosody," volume II., by Professor George Saintsbury; "The Isle of Wight," painted by A. Heaton Cooper, described by A. R. Hope Moncrieff; "Peeps at the World," by A. R. Hope Moncrieff; "The Kinsfolk and Friends of Jesus," by the Rev. R. C. Gillie; "The Johannine Writings," by Professor Paul W. Schmiedel; "Bacteria in Relation to Country Life," by Professor Jacob G. Lipman; "The Science of Jurisprudence," by Dr. Hannis Taylor; "Abraham Lincoln—the Boy and the Man," by James Morgan; "Mater," by Percy MacKaye; "Economic Zoology," by Professor Herbert Osborn; "Administration of Education in the United States," by Professors Samuel T. Dutton and David S. Snedden; also, "Chaucer—a Bibliographical Manual," by Eleanor P. Hammond.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN & Co. publish this week "The Life of Thomas Bailey Aldrich," by Ferris Greenslet, whose work is based on an uncommonly rich mass of manuscript material furnished by the family and friends of the poet and an intimacy with Mr. Aldrich during the last years of his life; "The Lighted Lamp," by C. Hanford Henderson, author of "John Percyfield," etc., which deals with the career of a young American of well defined limitations, who unexpectedly falls heir to an income of $5000, and goes abroad, developing his faculties and sensibilities through the experiences of travel, through his friendships with cultivated people and through two successive love affairs; "The Confessions of a Railroad Signalman," by Janes O. Fagan, a practical railroad man, a towerman of long experience on one of the big American railroads, who knows of railroad accidents and their causes as no special investigator or railroad theorist could possibly know them; "The Quest Flower," by Clara Louise Burnham, a holiday gift book for children; also,

"The Story of a Wireless Telegraph Boy," by John Trowbridge, a story for boys, full of adventure and excitement.

THE FRANK ALLABEN GENEALOGICAL COMPANY, 3 West Forty-second Street, New York City, has brought out the first of a series of little books to be entitled Genealogical Miniatures, edited by Mabel Thacher Rosemary Washburn. The volume is entitled "Ancestry of William Howard Taft," and shows that the Republican candidate for President is of old Massachusetts stock, the first American Taft having been one of the founders of Mendon. The Tafts were active in Colonial and Revolutionary days. Chapters are also given on the Torrey, Rawson, Wilson, Grindall, Hooker, Cheney and Emerson families, from all of which Mr. Taft descends. He was a cousin of Ralph Waldo Emerson. The seven illustrations include two portraits of Mr. Taft. Among the other volumes announced in this series are "Jay Gould's Ancestry," "The Goelets in New York," "The Stillmans," "Washington's Ancestry," "Lincoln's Ancestry," "Genealogy by Photography," "The Royal Thachers," "The Beekmans," "The Schermerhorns," "Papal Nobility in New York," "The Ghent of the de Peysters," "The Phelps," "The Toppings," and "Washburn of Ludlow, Vermont."

A. C. McCLURG & Co. have brought out this week "Musical Memories—My Recollections of Famous Celebrities, 1850-1900," by George P. Upton, who has met on familiar terms every great musical artist of the latter half of the nineteenth century. The work is personal as between Mr. Upton and the gifted men and women of whom he is writing, without being more than suggestively biographical or historical. This combination of latitude and limitation allows the most delightful treatment of individuality, Mr. Upton's own individuality being by no means the least worth forming a close acquaintance with. The book is profusely illustrated. They have also just ready "Clotilde," a charming story of plantation life in old Louisiana by Marguerite Bouvet, with illustrations by Maginel Wright Enright; also, "The Flaming Sword, and Other Legends," by Edith Ogden Harrison, fourteen short stories for children, some of them quaintly instructive, knitting together the external beauties of the universe with a well known tale from the Scriptures, with pictures in color by Lucy Fitch Perkins; also, a new Viking story entitled "Wulnoth the Wanderer," by the well-known English writer, H. Escott-Inman. It is a story written with the young reader in mind as much as the adult, and this two-fold purpose, together with its decorative dress, uniform with "The Thrall of Leif the Lucky," etc., should make it an attractive gift book.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY announce for the fall a work in two volumes entitled "The Great English Letter Writers," selected and edited by W. J. Dawson and his son, C. W. Dawson, the letters having been arranged not chronologically but according to the subjects with which they deal; "The Web of Time," a story dealing largely with a Scottish community in Canada, by Robert E. Knowles, who is known as "the Ian Maclaren of Canada;" "The Lady in Gray," by Miss Clara E. Laughlin, literary editor of the Chicago Interior, a quaint little story, the heroine of which appears to be an invisible but comforting personality; "The Knack of It," by Charles Battell Loomis, who insists that his is a book of sermons, or as near sermons as a professional humorist can ever hope to get, but which, though it has no text or a moral, is the sort of a book one likes to read on a rainy day and pass on to some other fellow who looks as if he needed toning up; "Letters from a Workingman," by "The American Mechanic," a series of articles on life and conditions from a workingman's point of view contributed to the Outlook; "Education in Religion and Morals," by Professor George Albert Coe, who has just been appointed to a chair in Union Theological Seminary, and is considered to be one of the foremost psychologists among the younger thinkers in this country; "Frugality in the Spiritual Life, and Other Themes for Meditation," by the Rev. W. L. Watkinson, of London, a prince of sermon builders; also, "The Life and Addresses of John Jasper," of Richmond, Va., who will be recalled in connection with his astounding astronomical lecture entitled "The Sun Do Move."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready the first of an important series of ten or twelve volumes, edited by Dr. James Hastings, entitled "The Encyclopædia of Religion and Ethics." The purpose of this work is to give a complete account of religion and ethics throughout the world. It will contain articles on all the religions of the world and on all great ethical systems. It will also contain separate articles on every separate religious belief and practice, and on every ethical or philosophical idea and custom. It will thus furnish the materials for a history of human progress or decline throughout all the ages of the world and among all the races of mankind. Persons and places famous in the history of religion and morals will also be described. Each subject will be assigned to a writer who has made a special study of it. When the subject belongs to more than one religion, and is of sufficient importance, it will be treated, not by a single writer, but by a number of writers, each in his own department. They have also just ready a work entitled "The Other Americans," by Arthur Ruhl, of the editorial staff of Collier's, which gives a keen, intelligent and remarkably interesting account of the cities, country, and especially the people of South America, illustrated by photographs and drawings; "The Hermit and the Wild Woman," a collection of short stories by Edith Wharton; "English Voyages of Adventure and Discoveries," retold for young people from Hakluyt, by Edwin M. Baker; also, a new edition of Arthur Train's "Prisoner at the Bar," containing an additional chapter dealing with "Insanity as a Defence in Criminal Cases," an index and a valuable bibliography.

S. Weir Mitchell's

NEW HOLIDAY GIFT BOOK

A Venture in 1777

Laid in the same period as "Hugh Wynne," this story breathes the true spirit of the Revolution, and shows the patriotic fervor that in those days seemed to be in the very atmosphere. The "venture" has to do with the bold confiscation of a map belonging to Major Montresor of the British staff, and the carrying of it through the British lines to General Washington at Valley Forge. With Dr. Mitchell's name on the title page, it is needless to say that it is a tale that will hold one's attention to the very end.

Four full-page illustrations by J. J. GOULD printed in color, and marginal decorations by GUERNSEY MOORE on every page. Printed in two colors throughout.

The handsomest gift book of the year.

Price, $1.25

Here's a Book Refreshing in Its Originality and Strikingly New in Its Treatment

"THE ONE AND I" is destined to make literary history this Fall. It is the brightest bit of writing since "The Lady of the Decoration," and the novel love story it tells will appeal to every heart, young and old alike. You are going to read it and then tell your friends about it.

THE ONE AND I
By ELIZABETH FREEMANTLE
Price, $1.50

The book is the diary of a girl who goes into the midst of the overtopping forests of the Canadian Northwest to work out the heart-problems of her life. There, close to Nature, she asks herself the questions that must decide her happiness. In this quaint personal journal nothing that is in her heart is hidden, nothing concealed. How she finally casts aside her career, her art, and accepts "The One" for her mate in life, the struggle it costs her, and the happiness it means afterwards—these episodes unite to make a story of power, beauty and charm.
